HENRY PROSECUTION RESULTS IN MISTRIAL

Jurors, Hopelessly Disagreed. Are Discharged by Justice Siddons—Two for Acquittal.

After having deliberated since 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, the jury in the case of John William Henry, former head of the bankrupt firm of Lewis Johnson & Co., bankers and brokers, charged with the embezzlement of checks aggregating $41,689 intrusted to him by Mrs. Isabell Barklie, of Wayne, Pa., for stock speculation, was discharged yesterday afternoon by Justice Siddons in Criminal Court No. 2. The jurors announce.

that they were hopelessly disagreed It is understood that the jury stood ten to two for conviction, Foreman Benjamin M. Mundell and William T. Betz holding out for a verdict of not

Although before the defense began the introduction of evidence eight counts in the indictment charging larceny after trust were stricken out, counsel for Mr. Henry succeeded yesterday in having the court direct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty with respect to them.

The Jury.

The jurors were as follows: Arther M. Connor, 45, real estate broker; Clifford C. Wineberger, 43, carriage builder; Francis Endres, 36, dairyman; Benjamin M. Mundell, 61, salesman; Frederick W. Chartron, 51, bartender; Robert C. Rice, 48, photographer; John N. Harding, 56, department store superintendent; William T. Betts, 54 grain store manager; James S. Bolden, 40, colored, janitor; Cyrus Mantz, jr., 30, newspaperman; George M. Gor-don, 40, clerk; William F. Rawlings, 49, motorman.

Lengthy Charge.

Justice Siddons delivered a lengthy charge to the jury, taking just two hours to give the instructions with respect to the law in the case.

Nearly a score of exceptions to the charge were taken by coursel for the defendant before the jury retired, but no additional instructions were given

The trial began June 8, and each day the courtroom has been crowded. United States Attorney John E. Laskey and his assistant, James B. Archer, represented the Government, while former Justice Daniel Thew Wright and T. Morris Wampler, former assistant Unit-

Morris Wampler, former assistant United States Attorney, were counsel for the accused broker.

Interest in the trial was added by the fact that it was Judge Wright's first appearance before a jury as counsel since he retired from the bench a year ago and was succeeded by Justice Siddons.

Dogged Defense.

A more dogged defense in the local criminal courts has probably never been Counsel for Mr. Henry have vigorously fought every move of the Government since the broker was incicted, and have thrown about the case a veritable network of legal technicalia veritable network of legal technicalities.

Each day during the trial Mr. Henry's wife, mother, and sister have occupied seats beside him. Sprinkled among the spectators every day have been fashionably gowned women, while many prominent business men have been in attendance throughout the trial.

The original indictment against Mr. Henry, on which he was tried, contained sixteen counts, eight alleging embezziement of the checks and the others charging larreny after trust of the same checks, but counsel for the defendant succeeded in having the court direct the Government to elect either set of eight counts. The prosecutors chose to stand on the embezziement counts.

Familiar With Couple. Testimony in the trial was to the effect that Mr. Henry first became well acquainted with Mrs. Barklie and her husband. Archibald Barklie, when they spent the winter in Washington several years ago. Mrs. Barklie testified that she gave Mr. Henry the checks at various times for stock speculation. The contention of the defense throughout was that Mr. Henry actually used the checks to procure 800 shares of Mexican petroleum stock. Conflicting testimony in this regard was given and testimony in this regard was given and different deductions were drawn by the respective counsel as to what the books of Lewis Johnson & Co. showed.

The indictment of Mr. Henry followed closely the crash of the firm of Lewis Johnson & Co. last December. The firm was established in 1858 and its clients included some of the most prominent and wealthlest citizens of Washington.

The tax levy will be $1.75 on each $100 divided as follows: Schools, 50 cents; roads 50 cents; general county purposes 65 cents. This last item heretofore has been 40 cents, but the board added the State tax of 25 cents which has been released to the county by the segregation plan of State taxation. The State tax of 10 cents for schools makes up the total of $1.75. Under the segregation plan, the county loses the taxes on about $400,000 of intangible property, but the loss is more than made up by the addition to the county of the 25 cent State tax. It is estimated that the new county levy will yield a revenue of about $140,000 a year.

In the new county budget $2,500 has been provided for county survey and engineer services, which sum will be available to pay a county engineer, should one be decided upon later.

Though the final audit of postal accounts will not be made until September, the postal deficit for the fiscal year just closed will total approximately $10,000,000, according to an estimate by Postmaster General Burleson. The deficit for the first three quarters of the Postmaster General Burleson explains that under unprecedented conditions which could not be forseen, a postal deficit was inevitable. He says, however, that but for the fact that a saving of $14,500,000 has been made from the appropriations for the year, the deficit would have approximated $25,600,000.

"Notwithstanding the falling off in other mails, the parcel post has continued to grow," the Postmaster General continued, "and is now in every respect a better, as it is a larger, service than it was a yest ago." He concludes: "Now that revenues are fast returning to normal, the prespects of the postal establishment for the new fiscal year are excellent. It is this fact which enabled us to carry out the will of Congress to provide for the annual automatic promotions of postal clerks and carriers and railway mail clerks, at an added cost for the new year of $2,400,000. I was delighted to find that the outlook warranted this action and desire to say that it was made possible only by the hard work and intelligent co-operation of the postal organization during the trying period now ending."

PLENTIFUL BY WAR

NEW YORK, July 5 .- A ride on a Staten Island ferryboat will disclose in the transit of the upper bay more ves sels with wings than have been seen in the harbor almost in a generation. There are now (or were a few days ago) twenty-seven sail-nine ships and eighteen barks. On August 5, 1914, there was one ship at Shooter's Island, one at Stamford, and eight barks in port, two of which were for sale. One of them was not sold, and is now on her way to Liverpool with a cargo of iumber from Gulf-

The war mechants said this would happen.

The laws of trade governed by supply The laws of trade, governed by supply and demand, are as immutable as the laws of nature. When hostilities start-ed, shipping men said that if it should pay coasting steamers better to go for-eign than to adhere to their northern and southern routes, they would go foreign; it so happened.

So keen has been the demand for any type of drogher that will float, that an antarctic exploring ship and a schoolship of a foreign navy have been chartered for cargoes. Both came to and comparison.

It has been said that some ships on their first trip have paid for themselves. Ten years ago the Brynhilda, which cost $75,000 to build on the Clyde in 1885, sold for $25,000. Last fall she was sold to the Harriss & Irby Cotton Company and A. H. Bull & Co. for $73,000. In one trip to Bremen with cotton she is reported to have paid for herself. But this statement requires some explanation, salling ship men say They doubt if she made her cost. Where the shippers own the sip they credit themselves with the cost of her. This explains how she pays for herself, the outsiders say. In with the costs must be figured not In with the costs must be figured not only the delays of the elements but also the incommoding inspection by the allies.

In a general comparison of freights for sail with a year ago, it was said at the office of J. F. Whitney & Co., that freights for South America, for instance, are about 100 per cent higher. This accounts for the number of schooners going there.

In the deal trade between Canada and England and between Guif of Mexico ports and England, freights are about 400 per cent higher than last summer. Coal for South America brings to sail craft about 100 per cent more for carrying than twelve months ago. This accounts for schooners going south of the equator.

To Australian ports sail get about 300 per cent more freight than last year.

Between Canada and the United States for the small type of sailing craft there is not much increase in freights, except for coal, which brings 50 per cent more for the transportation.

Never in the recollection of Whit-ney & Co, has there been such a move-ment of small vessels Europeward. Only on last Tuesday Pendleton Bros. had a-fore-and-after sail for New York from Cadiz, whither she had made a
